

REPUBLICANS TO CONTROL NEXT CONGRESS EVIDENTLY POLITICS & NOT ADJOURNED AT TUESDAY'S ELECTION

DEMOCRATIC PRESS GIVE G. O. P.
MAJORITY OF 19 IN HOUSE
AND 4 IN SENATE.

VOTERS ENTER PROTEST

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 6.—Conceding a majority of 20,000 for Ford in Wayne county, Chairman Mangum of the Republican State Central committee claimed November's election by 25,000. Governor A. E. Sleeper has been re-elected and apparently the entire republican ticket has been returned with him. The only apparent upset in the congressional line-up was the defeat of Congressman Samuel W. Beakes, democrat, by Earl C. Michener, his republican opponent.

Beakes, democrat, by Earl C. Michener, his republican opponent.

Late Returns.

New York, Nov. 6.—Revised returns this afternoon of the complete New York city vote for governor as given by the local news organ which has been compiling them reduced Smith's lead over Whitman to 24,673 votes with 325 districts from the rest of the state missing.

Michigan Situation.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 6.—The election of United States Senators in Michigan has narrowed down to a nipp and tuck race between Lieut. Commander Truman H. Newberry, republican, maintaining a narrow lead over Henry Ford, democrat.

Michigan Congressional News.

New York, Nov. 6.—The next House of Representatives will be republican. On the face of latest returns the political complexion of the Senate is still in doubt.

Weeks Defeated.

Senator Weeks, the junior republican Senator from Massachusetts, was defeated by former governor of Walsh. Senator Lewis M. T. Moore, former representative by independent. Late returns from thirty-one districts were missing or in doubt. The 219 republicans constitute a majority of the house which has 435 seats.

Democrat Claims.

Washington.—Homer S. Cummings, acting chairman of the Democratic National Committee, this afternoon asserted that the democratic whip, affected by independent, had been beaten by republicans. Senator McDonald of Chicago, Senator Saulsbury of Delaware, president pro tem of the Senate defeated by former Senator Ball, republican, and Representative Shirley, democrat of Kentucky, chairman of the appropriations committee.

Ford Defeated.

With the results incomplete, Henry Ford was running behind Truman H. Newberry, former assistant secretary of the navy, his republican opponent in Michigan. Joseph W. Ford, former governor of Mo., running for senator to succeed Senator Stone, was defeated by Judge Steiner, the republican nominee.

In the election for the house, former Speaker Cannon was returned to his seat from Ill., for what will be his third term.

Socialists Bounced.

Never M. London, the only socialist in the house, was defeated by former representative Henry M. Goldsmith, democrat, running with republican endorsements. The loss of the socialist seat however, was offset by the election of another socialist, Mr. Bernier of Milwaukee, who defeated George Stanford, republican.

Berger previously served in the House and at present is under the indictment charges for having violated the espionage act. All the socialist candidates in New York were beaten among them was Philmont, candidate for mayor a year ago Friday.

The Women's Vote.

To what extent of women of New York exercised their suffrage for the first time has been responsible for the close result in the state contest, was not apparent early today. There were several women candidates for congress in the state but all were defeated.

Representative Rankin of Montana, first woman to hold a seat in Congress, was not running for re-election to the house, but contested independently for a senate seat, after being defeated in the Republican primaries.

Closes Race.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 6.—Mrs. Lillian R. Morrison, wife of a heralded first time voter in Kansas, applied to the county auditor for a permit to wear overalls. She says in her communication that she has been wear mail attire is out of date in complying with the laws of the State of Washington in so doing. She says her husband has no objection to her wearing the overalls, but some neighbors have.

The auditor put his "pick" on the request. The prosecuting attorney says the law forbidding women to vote is still in effect.

She says her husband has no objection to her wearing the overalls, but some neighbors have.

Rapid Retirement.—Along the Aisne river, so rapid is the retirement that it is difficult to determine the exact location of the contending forces along this 88 miles of front.

CLEAR BARRIER.—British forces have cleared the barrier of Mormal Forest and threaten to drive a wedge between Mons and Maubeuge. To the south the French have launched an attack that has forced the enemy back to the Aisne. The Americans are close up to the French, just to the westward have overcome the stubborn resistance of the enemy and moved still nearer the Sedan-Longuyon.

RETREAT IN DISORDER.—There is evidence that the Germans are not carrying out the orderly retreat that marked their retirement from the Marne and Somme salient. Batteries of field guns with horses attached have been captured and a vast quantity of munitions which could be moved quickly under organized circumstances, have fallen into the hands of the allies.

To the north he is closely invested by the French, Belgians and British troops. The fighting there is apparently between German rear guards and the allied forces. For civilians are said to be close behind the line of Givet. Elizabeth of Belgium watched the beginning of the advance against the city.

SCHELD LINE BROKEN.—The line of the Scheldt is no longer any protection to the enemy in Belgium. It has been crossed everywhere from Ghent to Valenciennes, and it is probable that allied troops have been flying across the canal north of Ghent. Between Ghent and Antwerp there is a great natural obstacle except the Dender river which will aid the Germans in conducting defensive operations and it seems probable that the enemy will not turn at bay until he reaches the Namur-Brussels-Antwerp line which is said to have been prepared for a grim struggle.

YANKEES ADVANCE.—American forces north of Verdun have crossed the Meuse at three places and have gained control of the east side of the river. This advance is most important for it threatens the Sedan-Longuyon area at a new point, and removes from the Germans the advantage of having a position on the flank of the American forces advancing northward on the western side of the stream. Sedan must be under artillery fire from the medium calibre American guns.

The Soldiers' Vote.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 6.—If the result of New York state officers depends upon the soldier's vote, as now appears probable, will not be known until December 10th, it was stated at the office of Secretary of State Hugo C. Clunie.

Paul, Minn., Nov. 6.—As returned from the Minnesota election swelled to nearly a thousand, the republican and democrat, 1,000, and the socialist and 1,000, respectively, were elected.

McDonald's Vote.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 6.—Returns from Cook county complete and from 2,392 precincts out of 3,200 in the state, outside of Cook, give for United States Senator, McCormick 301,559 and Lewis 1,687.

Nelson Majority.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 6.—As returned from the Minnesota election swelled to nearly a thousand, the republican and democrat, 1,000, and the socialist and 1,000, respectively, were elected.

McDonald's Vote.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Safe majorities for the republicans in both branches of congress were claimed by the Republican National committee on the basis of returns to headquarters at the election this morning. These were Secretary James E. Ray, of Toledo, Ohio, fifty republican senators and two hundred and thirty republican representatives elected with good prospects for a larger majority in both houses.

Editorial elections in New Mexico, Kentucky and Montana were not included in Mr. Reynolds' estimate, and he claimed that Fall's election as representative in New Mexico was certain, with chances favoring the republican candidates in the other three states.

Women to Have Training.

Nashua—Military training is to be given to women members of the Young Women's Club here. Capt. Ralph Dietz of Company B, State Guards will direct the drills.

Insane Pretend Insanity.

A rather paradoxical message comes from the Paris Medical. In general, it seems, the doctor is not lightly to dismiss insanity which is obviously simulated. A pathological basis should be sought. There are cases where the patient is insane to pretend to be insane.

Snakes Bred for Profit
Most of the snakes used by showmen are procured from a large "snake farm" at San Antonio, Tex., where all kinds of reptiles are bred. This farm consists of eight acres for snakes alone, besides the land required for raising rabbits, chickens, frogs and other "snake feed."

TELLS WHY CHINESE ENTERED WORLD WAR

Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese minister to the U.S., states clearly the reasons which drew China into the war. "China's entry was not an accident, but a cause of action well grounded in reason," he said recently. "They decided for themselves that the war was no longer a mere matter of European politics, but a struggle for great and grave principles."

Edgerton to Have Chamber of Commerce.

Edgerton, Nov. 5.—At a meeting of last evening at the K. P. rooms it was decided to change the name to the Edgerton Chamber of Commerce as the organization had been doing a great deal of civic work it was felt the organization had outgrown its name, and it would therefore be advisable to take on a name more indicative of the work of the organization. Unlike Topsy—
Swift & Company
Has Not "Jest Growed"

Swift & Company, in fifty years of well ordered growth, has become one of the great national services because it has learned to do something for the American people which they needed to have done for them, in the way in which they preferred to have it done.

It has met each successive demand, in the changing conditions of national life, by getting good meat to increasing millions effectively, efficiently, economically, and expeditiously.

The Swift & Company packing plants, refrigerator cars, car routes, branch houses, organization, and personnel of today are the practical solutions, born of practical experience, to the food problems of a half a century.

Because of all of these elements working in correlation and unison, Swift & Company is able to supply more and better meat to more people than would have been possible otherwise, at a net profit per pound of meat so low (a fraction of a cent) that the consumer price is practically unaffected.

Strip away any portion of this vast, smooth-running human machine, and you make a large part of the meat supply uncertain, lose the benefit of half a century of fruitful experience, and scatter the intelligent energies of men who have devoted a life work toward meeting the needs of a nation in one vital field.

The booklet of preceding chapters in this story of the packing industry will be mailed on request to Swift & Company,
Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Illinois.

DAILY PRAYER.

Swift to Thy Throne Almighty God, we send our silent petitions for our country, for our Allies, and for the world. We thank Thee who wait and for the little children whose future is now staked on this war's issue. Thou art our Dependence and our guide; keep us true to Thee and to our own highest possibility, as we work and war for a wortlier world. Amen.

PHILIP RE-ELECTED.

Governor Philip has been re-elected governor of Wisconsin for a third term. With an unusually small vote and his victory is sufficient to demonstrate that his people have confidence in his judgment in handling state affairs and are ready to endorse his efforts to make Wisconsin one of the leading states of the Union where loyalty is concerned.

WILSON REBURIED.

Apparently President Wilson's decision to control the next session by having a number of suitable rubber stamp members elected has failed and indications are that the people of this nation have risen in their might and handed forth a stinging rebuke to their President, who was elected on
 the plea, "He kept us out of war," by sending down to Washington a safe majority of republicans to make
 the laws for the after-war period.
 This adjournment of politics until after the war was most acceptable to all
 loyal citizens, but they seriously objected to being told to vote for democrats simply because the President
 desired them to, and they thought for themselves.

WAR DAYS.

Janesville's men and women have been called upon for numerous activities that have not hitherto been their lot and have responded most uncomplainingly. No matter how hard the task, we have found our loyal women responding and the result has been most gratifying. Really the women are doing more than the sharp pro-pected them to help win this war.
 The work of the various branches of the Janesville Chapter of the Red Cross society have met all demands from knitting socks up to making the surgical dressings so essential to our wounded. There have been no slackers among our women here, nor in any of the cities of the district. They have been alive to every need.

Of course there are war days and at home the housekeeper has kept careful track of the food supplies and the food essential. When a dollar will not buy a pound of butter and a dozen eggs these days you know what the war has done to the average man on a salary—his pocket-book. When it hits the wage-earner's pocket-book it hits the housewife's purse and she must plan to economize to make up the difference. This is woman's work, but it counts.

Women have also replaced men in many essential business enterprises.
 It is a strange condition to meet, but the women of this nation have come into their own and are playing their part. Not subject to the selective draft for actual service they have taken the place of those who have been chosen, and while it takes time to break them into the new conditions, woman's place in the business and professional world for all time to come has been created by this war.
 Janesville discovers it in the employment of women in banks, in commercial business, in factories running machines hitherto run by men, and in a hundred other lines. The war has brought womanhood to the front and placed a premium upon the woman with brains.

HOW TO ADVERTISE CHRISTMAS.
 MAS. A. ADE.

The government not merely asks
 the people to limit their Christmas purchases to strictly useful articles, but to make their purchases very early this year. It considers the ordinary rush of the holiday season to be a harmful activity in time of war.
 It wants to keep the work of conducting stores and operating express companies and the postoffices, down to a normal basis during that period.

If people continue to do their Christmas buying at the usual time it will not be possible to deliver presents through the postoffice and express companies until long after the holiday. There is not help enough to be had to do the usual Christmas work unless it is strung out over a long period.

There is just one way to start this trade and get it going now. And that is for the stores to feature useful Christmas gifts in their advertising.

An indolent editor, who hated work, once told his reporters not to put in anything about politics. He thought that political excitement was largely stirred up by the newspapers. If they refrained from putting political news in the paper, he thought there would not be much political interest,
 and they would have less work to do.
 While that was very poor journalism, yet poor patriotism, too, the man's judgement was largely right as to where political interest comes from.

So it will be in Christmas trade. If the people are left to themselves on this matter, they will begin buying about the usual time, and there will be the usual rush and scurrying. If the merchants will advertise their Christmas offerings now, as many of them are doing, the trade will get going in good shape early in November, and the work will be distributed so that there will be less of a rush at any one time.

A friend asks what should be done with anyone who believes the Huns will voluntarily keep the promises they make in the peace treaty? Well good judges are divided whether they should be confined in a home for the feeble-minded, or be allowed at large with guardians appointed over their property.

OPPOSED TO FENCES.

The members of the American Civic Association has been asked to start a campaign all over the country, to prevent the erection of backyard board fences.

The following complaints are made about the old-fashioned board fence:

It is a fire-risk, and often tends to spread fires.

It is a disease risk, providing a place where many people dump matter that serves as a breeding place for insects.

It prevents circulation of air, thus increasing heat in summer.

It disfigures a residence district.
 Back yard fences are not usually kept well painted.

On the contrary it is held that wire and iron fences and hedges expose them to publicity and therefore promote neatness, they make a town look like an open park, and stimulate competition in raising flower gardens and attractive lawns. They throw down social barriers, lead people to get better acquainted, and thus work
 co-operatively for community ends.
 The open back yards stimulate competition in beauty.

The old time back yard fence has wholly disappeared in many places. It is an expensive proposition on present cost of lumber and labor.

People who want to have their boundaries marked find hedges serve that purpose admirably. They turn a lot from a hard and unattractive bit of real estate into a nest of beauty.
 If hedges are well selected, of some variety of plant not subject to winter killing, they will mark the boundary line for many years. They save the cost of painting, and the only bother is the annual job of clipping them.
 The children of the family or of your neighbors, will do it for a small price,
 if the householder is too occupied.

WILSON REBURRED.

Apparently President Wilson's decision to control the next session by
 having a number of suitable rubber
 stamp members elected has failed and
 indications are that the people of this nation have risen in their might and
 handed forth a stinging rebuke to
 their President, who was elected on
 the plea, "He kept us out of war," by sending down to Washington a
 safe majority of republicans to make
 the laws for the after-war period.

This adjournment of politics until after the war was most acceptable to all
 loyal citizens, but they seriously objected to being told to vote for democrats simply because the President
 desired them to, and they thought for themselves.

It is amazing how the kids would take hold "clean-up" day, if you announced that the rubbish would be burned in a bonfire containing two or three roast potatoes.

As we are warned that food will long be scarce even after the war, it is to be hoped that some of our cautious farmers will be emboldened to keep a pig this winter.

It has not been observed that the prosperous business man who bought $50 Liberty bond displays his button or any less conspicuously than any one else.

The Boches are unable to decide whether to take their licking now, or have the pleasure of looking forward to it until next spring.

Now that alcoholic liquors are declared to be an unsuitable remedy for influenza, some people will conclude that it is undesirable to have it.

In advertising for 2,500 more stenographers, the government does not absolutely require that they wear skirts up to their knees.

In these days when shoe prices are limited to $12.00, it is desirable to speak very respectfully to the cobbler.

Before the Hun gets peace, they may conclude it's best to make some effort to pass as human beings.

A QUIET PLACE.
 (By Wireless from a Long-since Departed Poet.)

If you're seeking a quiet seclusion
 far from the conflict of arms,
 Removed from the constant confusion
 Of war's ever sounding alarms,
 If weary of slaughter and pillage,
 Join us in our placid old village.

The place has a number of charms.

We get no peace notes from the kaiser
 We worry no whit about food.

We know how to swat the meat miser.
 The gay profligate is subdued.

Our methods of punishment differ
 From yours, being surer and stiffer,
 Though folk with ideals call us
 Cruel.

We pity the poor earthly sufferer
 Who's worried o'er blasts from the Pole.

For fear that next winter he'll suffer
 Because of a shortage of coal.

Apartments we live in are heated.
 It's quiet down here in (deleted).
 But great for repose of the soul.

IN LINE.

I stood in line to join and now
 I stand in line for mess;
 I stand in line for everything
 I get, almost, I guess.

And when I do go back again,
 When Old Bill's dream has burst,
 I'll stand in line to kiss my girl,
 Perhaps, and that is worst.

 seems to be hitting on all twelve cylinders.

Frank W. Frueauft is known as the champion director in the United States—and probably of the world. Heis an officer or director in 130 corganization employing more than16,000 men and women in twenty-four states.This last menis to say, he is an operator of gas and electric companies by profession.He started as a meter reader in Denver as soon as

 he got out of school,
 and he's been in that business ever since.It is probable that while he was reading meters for the Denver Gas & Electric company he remembered that his name means "early riser."
 At any rate, he became a director in that company when he was thirty, and president a year or so later.Now his office is at 60 Wall street,
 New York, and his home is in Garden City, N. Y.He is forty-four years old and a member of many clubs; but life to him is just one director's meeting after another.

 walks any more.

His chest's a trifle flatter than it's ever been before.

There are smiles upon the faces of the humble folks he kicked,
 And the world is feeling better now
 the Prussian knows he's licked.

He's dodging private soldiers that for years he has abused.

He's taking off forever that old clanking sword he's used.

Oh, the time was he imagined all the world to him must bow.

But the Prussian's had his lesson and he's very humble now.

It's a very different Prussian that men
 look upon today.

Than the one that used to jostle
 other people from his way.

Do not fear him, little children.
 Without hitching he will stand;

Since the Allied boys have tamed him
 he will cut out of your hand.

RECALLING CENTRAL POWERS' EXCUSE FOR STARTING WORLD WAR

The arrest of Gavrilo Princip; Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife; Sarajevo, scene of the crime.

Now that the central powers are about to collapse, it is interesting to recall the excuse which they used for plunging the world into war. On July 28, 1914, Gavrilo Princip, a nineteen-year-old Serb student, shot and killed Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria at Sarajevo, Bosnia. The half-crazed murderer was arrested. A month later the Austrian government made his crime the excuse for a stern ultimatum to Serbia. Had the Serbs accepted the harsh terms of the ultimatum they would have practically surrendered their sovereignty to Austria. They refused, and the war was on.

FOOTVILLE

Footville, Nov. 5.—Foster Palmer and family and Mrs. Ed. Palmer moved to Elkhorn on Sunday.

Worrell was received here by relatives to the effect that Harry Bush has been wounded while in active service in France.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Beavis reached home on Saturday after an absence of a number of weeks in Minneapolis a part of which time was spent by Mr. Beavis in a hospital where he submitted to a serious operation which proved to be successful and he is now out and so much improved that yesterday he walked down town and all are glad to feel that he is on the road to a rapid recovery.

Frank Pepper is quite seriously ill with Spanish influenza and Dr. Sutherland was called to prescribe for him.

Mrs. Surasy is able to be out again after a siege with the prevailing malady.

Within Note, Glenn Long, Will McElroy and several others have received notice to report for service about the middle of the month.

Prof. David Starr Jordan.

"Were it not for the dynastic state war itself would soon pass away, since in the normal world democracies do not fear each other and therefore do not arm against each other." So says Prof. David Starr Jordan. This noted pacifist is now for war with Germany to a finish so long as the Huns submit to autocratic rule. His latest views are contained in a letter to Karl Mathie, Chicago secretary of the American Friends of the German Democracy, and published by the society.

Jerusalem and Music.

Once someone tried to sneer at Disraeli, the great English statesman, because he was a Jew.

"Yes, I am a Jew," he replied, "and my ancestors were making exquisite music, four thousand strong, in the Temple of Solomon, two thousand years before Christ, while your ancestors were running wild, naked savages in the forest."

Which was perfectly true. In that temple at Jerusalem, which was the joy of the whole world, was made some of the most wonderful music ever heard on this earth.

In the Old Testament we read of the instruments they played, of how the young children were trained to sing and of the wonderful ceremonies, as wonderful and artistic as the carvings and traceries which adorned the temple itself.

MYERS THEATRE.

In presenting "Over There," which Max Gazzolo, Rowland and Clifford will bring to Myers Theatre on Friday, Nov. 8, they bring a play that has the stamp of approval of Chicago upon it. Its stirring scenes, its vivid action, its tremendous climaxes were all approved by the most critical play-goers in Chicago. The play shows many tragic scenes and many fascinating situations. The third act disclosed an airplane in full action, shooting the bullet from one in one scene, realistic in the extreme. A cathedral which houses many wounded is bombed by Hun, with all the heartrending circumstances that have become known since this great war began.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMSBY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a high school girl seventeen years old and a senior at school. Since I entered school I have always had to work to help support my mother. I did not attend any of the parties given at school. Now I work but could attend some of the affairs, but I find that I am in the "cold." All the girls that know me admit my having a smiling face, but I have never received a "bid" from any boy nor have I been invited by any of the girls to attend parties or the like. Everywhere I go it is always the same story—alone. I am too tired of going alone. I do not believe in flirting and this everlasting aloeness is growing unbearable. Please advise me what to do, as it seems to be so difficult to make him think that I like him better than other boys?

MARY JANE.

Unless you are engaged there is no reason why he should think you like him better than other boys. If he makes himself unpleasant because of this aloeness, give him up. Jealousy in others is very hard to bear.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl nineteen years old and going to high school. I have been keeping company with a boy whom I have known for three years. Lately he has commenced drinking and I want to stop him for his own good. What shall I do?

PEGGY.

Tell the boy that he is a very dear friend to you and you will be ready to help him in case he asks you to, but until he stops drinking you will not see him again. You cannot sacrifice your own good name by appearing in public with a boy who is violating the law of respectability.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am afraid that I have done a very unwise thing, but do not wait for them to speak. When they will tell you can by their names. To say "Good morning, Margaret," is more lasting than merely "Good morning."

When some girl is wearing a pretty dress tell her so. Take a lively interest in the attractions of those around you, and they will soon feel the warmth of your presence and will like you for it.

Many girls of your age have on not worry you in the least.

Be very careful about your appearance. Absolutely never wear sold clothes, and if you can't afford anything else seek that the needs of your expressman and felt as though he was giving away her last hope with it.

When the two men carried the broken pieces of machinery down into Edith's workshop, Edith put on her hat and coat and went down to the railroad station.

She knew that Mr. Fenn would be on the train which was due about that time. She was determined to know definitely whether Edgar had borrowed the money from him, even though that would bring her a fresh burden of wretchedness.

She came to the station just as the train arrived and saw him step off. She thanked heaven even for the slight grace that Mrs. Fenn had not come to meet him. She greeted Fenn and noticed how nervous he seemed as seeing Edith alone; more ill at ease than he had ever been in her presence. She fell in step with him while he walked a few hasty steps of this and that.

Suddenly she stopped and he with her.

"Mr. Fenn, if I begged you to do me a favor which greatly concerned my husband, would you do it for me?"

Fenn looked flustered.

"Anything at all in my power, Mrs. Ferrol—and you know it," he said, trying by his earnestness to cover his embarrassment.

"Then please tell me—has my brother borrowed money of you?"

Fenn stood speechless. Edith turned to see into his averted eyes and read her answer there. Edith saw DISCOVERIES.

Cooking Pumpkin. This is an excellent way to cook pumpkin. Wash and remove a piece from the blossom end, and scoop out seeds and pulp. Put in a cube cake tin, placing the cavity of the vegetable over the tube, and add one-half cup of water in the tin. This conveys the heat to all parts of the vegetable. Remove from the oven when done, and the skin will peel off like paper.

Saving Glass Jars. When canning jams and butters put in any kind of a glass jar with a screw lid and in order to seal them airtight dip the lids in hot paraffin and put same on each jar carefully. By using such cans mason jars are saved for fruits and vegetables.

Fried Dressing. Take the leftover oatmeal from the morning's meal. To this add a few stale bread crumbs. Mix with potatoes and fry either German or French style.

About Potatoes. Before buying potatoes, cut a sample potato in half, and the two ends together. If they stick, the potato is good and mealy; if they slide apart, the potato is watery and of poor quality. If you are in a hurry for potatoes to bake, let them stand in very hot water a few minutes before putting them into the oven.

For Leftover Pancake Dough. A good light cake may be made out of some leftover pancake dough by adding shortening, rice flour, baking powder, sugar and vanilla. Mix as for cake. If the pancake dough had eggs in it none is needed; if not, add an egg. Sour milk pancake dough is all right. This is a good cake and can be served like cottage pudding. Another way to save pancake dough is to print it in larger than the regular morning add baking powder and you can make good pancakes again.

MISCELLANEOUS DISHES.

Pineapple Fritters. Beat up an egg in a basin, sift in a cupful of flour, gradually add one-half cupful of milk, one-half teaspoonful salt and a teaspoonful of olive oil. Make smooth and glossy. Allow to stand in a cool place for an hour. Then add a teaspoonful of baking powder. Dip one slice of pineapple at a time, drop into smoking hot fat, fry for a few minutes, then drain. Serve hot with sifted sugar.

Oatmeal Hermits. Cream one-half cup shortening with one-half cup sugar. Add two well-beaten eggs, six tablespoons milk, one teaspoon each cinnamon and cloves, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon soda, two cups flour, one and one-half cups rolled oats, one-half cup chopped nuts, and one and one-half cups raisins. Mix and dredge with part of flour. Make dough to small balls, press flat and lay two inches apart on battered baking sheet and bake in moderate oven.

Hott Gingerbread. Beat three tablespoons butter, one-half cup brown sugar and one egg until very creamy. Add one-half cup corn syrup, one-half cup water, one-half teaspoon each cinnamon and ginger, one-quarter teaspoon cloves, one and one-third cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder and one-half cup seeded raisins cut fine. Serve hot with whipped cream or cottage cheese in which has been mixed finely chopped preserved ginger.

Edith listened stonily, crushing down the tiny voice within her which cried "Flame-father!"

"I only know that I shall not rest until I have paid back at the very earliest moment every cent of the money you borrowed from Mr. Fenn!"

she said slowly and turning left the room.

Tales of the Friendly Forest

Now, I hope you were not worried because I left dear kind Uncle Lucky and Billy Bunny in Mr. Buck's log hut with the big brown bear. For I told you he was friendly bear, you know, and when I tell you a thing it's so, please don't worry.

Well, after a while Uncle Lucky said it was time to go, and that he would take Mr. Bear home if he cared to ride in a sleighmobile. And, of course, Mr. Bear did, and so would the noise.

Following any communicable disease, if the patient has not been kept in filth, there is no need whatever of any fumigation of the sickroom or of any waste of good disinfectants in cleaning up the sickroom. Ordinary soap and water cleaning and a thorough wash for a day (admitting all the sunlight possible), are quite sufficient to prevent such a disease for another person. This is the only precaution taken nowadays in the best hospitals in clothing which is not visibly soiled.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Circumcislon and Psychology. We have a little boy now months old and we are doubtful about having him circumcised. Is it necessary, and why? (R. E. K.)

Answer. How can I tell without examining the boy? Circumcislon is interference with urination or perfect cleanliness. Circumcislon children for psychological effect are scarcely important in such cases. Circumcislon is necessary or not necessary—there need be no doubt about it.

Good Nursing Organs.

I would like to ask you what the tonsils are good for and also what is the appendix good for? (K. W. B.)

Answer. Both of these organs are good nothing—the tonsils won't buy them. Once on a time, about 11 million years ago, the tonsils and the appendix probably had some useful purpose, but they aren't now.

They are dangerous there as Stryke Camp herself.

Normal Salt versus Antiseptics.

Some one told me that a teaspoonful of salt and a cup of water is an excellent antiseptic for cuts, burns, etc.

Answer. No. The only reason for putting that quantity of salt in the water to be used for sprays, gargles, washing the eyes, cleaning wounds, etc., is to render the water salty, as salt is astringent, and it is less irritating than plain water. It has no antiseptic value. Boric acid solution for a mouthwash or gargle is antiseptic, though I wouldn't waste time on such things—I would wear a mask when exposed.

INFECTED CLOTHING

A relative or friend who has some infection or communicable disease gives certain valuable articles of personal attire to you. Are these articles safe to wear? Is any object coming from the sickroom in which one with communicable disease is or has been confined safe to use? Or is there any way of making such things safe for another person to use?

Well, I guess so. Uncle Lucky said it was time to go, and that he

SIDE TALKS—BY—RUTH CAMERONLOOKING FOR A LOVE CHARM

During the airing in court of the matrimonial squelched linen of one of the families whose wealth, at least, would be given away.

And I agreed with emphasis that it certainly did.

You and I would like to be able to know such things perhaps, but we know better don't we?

And yet, as I fell to thinking of the whole matter, I wondered if you and I—in other words, the average woman—do know so very much better.

She Thinks The Marriage Certificate

The average woman doesn't think she can hold a certificate of any magic paper which the fortune teller gives her, but doesn't she have a haunting feeling that she can hold it by virtue of that magic paper, the marriage certificate?

The average woman does not expect to get back love by a philter, or how about her expecting to get love back by displaying jealousy?

Reason tells her that she can't make her husband fall in love with her again.

Incidentally she took pains to explain that she was not the patient Griselda type of woman, but that she wanted to get him back only to have him for the suffering he had caused her by casting her off.

More Like The Middle Ages.

Some one called my attention to this portion of the testimony, and said "Doesn't it seem inconceivable that in this day and generation women with education should believe that an innkeeper?"

"Impossible, child! Read this card of Miss Ramdoss is Cleopatra's Need to Live."

"I know, oh, my papa, but Ramdoss is not the innkeeper!"

"Well, what is the name of Gibberish?"

"The bald waiter, daddy!"

"Oh, that's different, Scheele. Isla bless thee, my child!" And the great Egyptian lay back and smoked eighty cigarettes.

In that first moment Farquhar teetered forward, instinctively fighting the galling storm with the fierce physical madness of a body goaded by intolerable torture, then he dropped quietly to his knees and waited for the end. He heard the scream of a horse in terror, and a thud as of something falling close beside him, but he remained indifferent. Stubbornly, doggedly, he awaited the final consummation of his release.

Then something touched him. He awoke with a curse of resentful agony. A hand had gripped through the darkness. It gripped him, and he dragged himself to his feet, lifting the heavy, invisible body with him. The sand beat down upon them. He turned his back to the storm. He stamped the shifting, whirling mass under his feet, and with a woman's generous tenderness sheltered the motionless unknown man against his shoulders. No word was spoken. Eternities of suffering in which each moment was the last, bore down upon him. There was no time in that hideous, revolving obscenity—all the landmarks of life had been swept away, and he was pitted against the full force of death itself. He dropped back. With an effort he gathered the unconscious man closer, keeping his face uppermost. Then he lay still, wondering if this were death...

The peace was absolute. Golden clouds sank lazily through the quiet air, and beyond the haze a single fiery star blazed down from a dome of emerald. He lifted himself painfully on his elbow. This was not death, nor the world he had left. Where there had been hills there were now plains, and the gullies had become mountains. Where there had been men there were now nothing but smooth layers of untroubled sand. Something moved and touched Farquhar. He started and looked down at the man whose head still rested against his arm. Their eyes met. In the red twilight they recognized each other—and their eyes shift, he waited for them, his arms folded instantly in shy horror of that which indomitable, imperturbable, triumphant the other had become. Arnaud dragged himself up upon his elbow and coughed the sand from his lungs.

"My horse bolted and threw me," he jerked out gratingly. "I must have been half stunned. I did not know that it was—you." There was a brief silence. They measured each other. Then Arnaud stretched out his hand.

"I'm sorry—I wish to God I did not hate you, Farquhar."

They went on. Behind a great rock which towered out of the storm-driven sand they found Colonel Destinn. He stood with his back to them and counted the thin circle of men who remained. There were a hundred in all. They had fought the storm for ten hours. The sand clung to their uniforms, to their hair and beards. On every face was printed the same devastation, the same exhausted suffering, and something else that looked like the ravenous greed of wolves whose prey is within sight. Colonel Destinn turned.

"To work—at once—all of you!" he commanded. But they did not move. They stood there, watching him. As he saw their purpose he sprang back.

Six times his revolver barked in the stillness—four men rolled over. Then it stopped. They stood there, watching him. As he saw their purpose he sprang back.

With the red twilight they recognized each other—and their eyes shift, he waited for them, his arms folded instantly in shy horror of that which indomitable, imperturbable, triumphant to the last. They flung themselves upon him. But for one swift moment Farquhar had met Destinn's eyes. What passed in that lightning recognition he did not know. He broke through the raging circle of madmen, beating up their weapons, and flung himself recklessly between the lonely man and death. A bullet grazed his cheek, and he laughed, a cracked, high-pitched laugh of good-humored mockery.

"You're no good, comrades—no good. You can't even shoot. You wanted me as a leader—now I'll lead you. I'll lead you against the Arabs, against all France, to Morocco, to freedom; but I claim this man as my prisoner, comrades; I claim his life."

They cursed somberly at him.

"It won't do!" the foremost legionary shouted. "They're the only witnesses against us. Dead men don't tell tales. If we're caught who's to know they didn't die in the storm with the rest?"

"If we're caught I give you my word of honor that none of you shall suffer," Farquhar interrupted. "It's my word against these two lives. Is it a bargain?"

They answered with a frenzied, dry-throated cheer. Hardly seized Farquhar's hand and kissed it, and the next instant they were all around him, sobbing, laughing, shouting like children awakened from intolerable nightmare. They called their allegiance to him in a dozen half-forgotten tongues, they gripped his hands and kissed the hem of his tattered coat in fantastic worship.

"We'll follow you, Englishman: do with us as you like—we trust you."

There were burning tears of gratitude, of deeply stirred pity, on his cheeks. He turned gravely to the two officers.

"You are my prisoner, Colonel Destinn: Captain Arnaud, I must ask you for your sword. Have I your word of honor that neither of you will attempt escape?"

Arnaud bowed. Destinn was smiling.

The men were silent. A strange, pitiable figure had crept out from the shadow of the rocks. It was Goetz—Goetz, scarcely recognizable save for the livid scar across his cheek. He staggered blindly, and his cracked and bloodless lips could make no sound. But he pointed westward. A low line of dust whirled against the scarlet horizon and came nearer. In the dying light flashes of silver broke through the rapidly moving cloud. They could almost hear the thud of galloping hoofs.

"Arabs!"

The word passed like a sigh from mouth to mouth.

CHAPTER XVII.

Promises.

With the frenzied energy of madmen, they cleared the ammunition wagons from the deep drifts of sand. The bodies of comrades, stiffened already in the agonized attitudes of their death, were flung ruthlessly aside; rifles were torn from cold, tenacious hands; friends with whom they had marched and suffered were trampled under foot. There were seven hundred dead and a hundred living, and the seven hundred were forgotten. Fatigue, hunger and thirst were wiped out.

They crouched, silent and motionless, in the sand, with the sullen patience of wolves, hunted to their lair. They did not look at Farquhar, but they heard him. He could feel with a thrill of power how their nerves and muscles stiffened at his command. It was good to command again. He gave his orders mechanically in French, but his heart had spoken them in another, dearer tongue.

"Hold your fire till I give the signal. They haven't seen us yet. Sight at five hundred yards, and when you let go pick out your men."

The cavalcade advanced rapidly and unconsciously. At their head a horseman rode in majestic loneliness. A red streak from the dying sun lit up his burnished accoutrements, threw into relief the splendid outline of his figure. A moment later the command rang out:

"Ready—present—fire!"

The answering volley broke like a crack of thunder on the stillness, and when the smoke cleared a dozen saddles in the foremost ranks of the enemy were empty. Taken utterly by surprise, the troop swung round in disorder and burst into a short, headlong retreat.

But it was the panic of a moment. Fanatic, splendid, they swept on into the teeth of a withering death which left no trace. They raced one another for the gates of paradise: they bore down upon an enemy fighting only instinctively for a life that was already worthless. Farquhar glanced anxiously along his little line of men.

They were firing recklessly, hopelessly. He called to them, and they responded with patient, doglike obedience, but he knew that for them the fight was already over. This was the agony of death. Someone touched him. He turned. It was Destinn. They took aim together like men engaged in mimic warfare. Goetz dragged himself up alongside. He was smiling pleasantly with a cartridge between his teeth.

"I like dying in good company," he shouted, as the impudent was jammed into the smoking breech of his rifle. "That's the new prophet—All-Mahomed—in the front there. If we could bring him down it might break their backbone."

The Arabs were now within four hundred yards. Their pace had not slackened for an instant. Farquhar sprang to his feet.

"Cease firing—fix bayonets!"

He raced out alone to meet the enemy. The rain of bullets had been a spur to their fanatic daring—the sudden silence checked them. They wavered, suspecting a trap in this strange lull, seeing in the lonely figure the one thing they feared—the supernatural, the unknown. Not a shot was fired. For an infinitesimal second of indecision both sides waited. Goetz, with his rifle against his cheek, his finger on the trigger, kept up a soft flow of good-humored expletive.

"Mad—mad as Englishmen, but ob-eds of my fathers, what sublime method!"

Dizzy—Wrecked His Automobile

"Two years ago my stomach trouble got so bad that I was almost constantly filled with gas. This made me very dizzy at times. Last Fall I was almost overcome by one of these dizzy spells while driving my car, and ran it into a telephone pole, badly wrecking the car. A friend recommended May's Wonderful Remedy for my trouble. Since taking the first dose I have steadily improved, and feel better now than ever in my life."

He climbed down again; the mule after the manner of her kind had swung her head around and was looking back at the load and estimating whether she had been overloaded or not. The "skinner" walked around in front and addressed the mule in a disgusted tone as follows: "Looky here mew! Whaffer you come over year to this yer France fer? To do bookkeepin'?"

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

The following letter was written to Mrs. C. J. Murphy by her son, Frank, who is with Company M, 128th Infantry.
Somewhere in France, Oct. 10, 1918.
I suppose you have heard about Sergeant Wilbert Ryan. By the way, I hear he is getting along fine. I have been acting sergeant since he was hurt. I have been in the front line eight times and over the top three times, and was just beginning to think I wasn't destined to be wounded at all when I got gassed. I am not gassed very bad. I am in a hospital now, but I expect to be back with my company a few days. Sergeant Kamps of our company is here with me. He was gassed, too, but not very bad. Fred [unclear] is here. He was burnt once, but with gas. We all expect to be back in a few days. We got the Germans on the run and we're sure giving them hell, and all the boys are cutting on the war ending in less than a month. The division that Captain Caldwell is in was on our left, but we couldn't get away long enough to see him.

FRANK MURPHY.

Corporal Harry Williams writes the following letter to his mother, in which he mentions several Janesville boys.

Somewhere in France, Sept. 29, 1918.
I was in that big dugout at Chateau Thierry. Then we went in the drive at the Soissons front. That is where Leo Flanery, William Bumgarner and the Janesville boys fell. I was about one hundred rods from Leo and Nelson Horn when they went over the top. He and Leo were right beside each other when they were found. Leo is in fine health, also Mal-

CORP. HARRY WILLIAMS

Burnett McDiarmid has written the following letter to his mother:
Somewhere in France, Oct. 7, 1918.
We are about seven miles from the front and just got back from there. We have had some hard fighting back here, but we are driving them back all the time. When Sherman said "war was hell" he let it down easy, for I think it has got it on that place a whole lot.

BURNETT McDIARMID.

Lieut. Jos. E. Ryan writes the following letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Ryan, on Walker street. I am writing this in a dugout on one of the busiest fronts in France. Just at present we are pretty busy and we are kept on the jump in order to keep within range of Jerry. When he starts he sure can make a speedy withdrawal, and for the past week or so he sure has been beating it. At present he is offering some resistance but he can't last long. His main weapon of defense is machine guns and those goddamns sorts of enjoyment from blowing them up with our guns.

We fired a barrage the other day and it is reported that we caught a German nest and killed four hundred. I have been under shell fire several times and the novelty is sort of wearing off. You sure get some thrills the few times Jerry's shells burst near you. Our last position we had electric lights in our dugouts. It is different now as we have gone into American style of open warfare. Just a hole in the ground and a couple of blankets is enough for our bed. The French can not understand the hardness of the Americans.

Oxfordville, Nov. 5.—Privates Stanley Ashby and Charles Stuvengen, who have been spending the past two days with relatives here, left on Tuesday afternoon, the one for the hospital at Port Des Moines and the other for the aviation field where he is in training, in the state of New York.

A force of road workers are re-surfacing the highway west of the village of the village of Oxfordville, East school houses.

The men are making their headquarters in the village with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Corbett.

A light vote was cast on Tuesday in both the village and the township, there being but about fifty per cent in the latter place. The election was very quiet.

Mr. Bernis, who has been spending some time with his daughter, Mrs. G. W. Belting, left on Tuesday for Iowa for an indefinite stay.

School opened on Monday with something less than the usual attendance.

There are traces of the influenza still in the village, but the cases seem fewer and milder.

Another contingent of men under the draft age went to Beloit to take their medical examination.

MANY BASEBALL STARS TO DESERT GAME AFTER WAR

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York, Nov. 6.—With baseball packed away in the moth balls for the duration of the war and the stars of the game who are in the service migrating to France with their various units, the prediction that many of them will be missing when the game comes back grows stronger day by day.

The close of the 1915 season brought fourth announcements of that retirement from a number of players, among them Harry Hooper, Bill Hammon, Ty Cobb and others. Many more decisions of the kind may be expected.

The latest player to announce his definite retirement is Dr. John Lavan, Washington shortstop, now known as Major-Lieutenant Lavan, U. S. N.

Lavan said recently that he is through for all times. He is in the navy and he likes it. He is going to stick to it.

"I soon be going across," remarked Johnny to a friend in California. "And as I like the army I think I will stick to it. At any rate, we have played my last game of professional baseball. That's final."

Many more players now in the various branches of the service will do as Lavan intends to do. Getting away from baseball will seem good to dozens of them, for getting into something else, with a chance to make good after having served their most useful years on the diamond will appeal to the majority. Besides being able to make good in a "new game" these players will find the diversion a source of enjoyment.

A new crop of players—mostly youngsters—will come out with the return of the game, and the boys on the sand lots may find their dreams coming true much sooner than they ever dared hope before the war.

ALL NATIONS REPRESENTED ON GRANT BALL TEAM

Camp Grant, Ill., Nov. 6.—All the allied nations are represented on Camp Grant's big football squad that is turning up for the first meeting in Chicago, Capt. Omer, athletic director, is proud of the mingled strains of blood flowing in the veins of his gridiron warriors and is carefully grooming a full-blooded Chippewa Indian for the Camp Grant camp Taylor battle to be played November 9th in Chicago.

Willie Red Boy from White Earth reservation, Minnesota, is all the athletic credit of a fanatic football player. He was a baseball player of renown among the amateurs and semi-pros of the northwest but his career on the diamond ended abruptly because he killed a young girl when he hit her with a ball while she was playing in a game at Pipestone, Minn., two years ago.

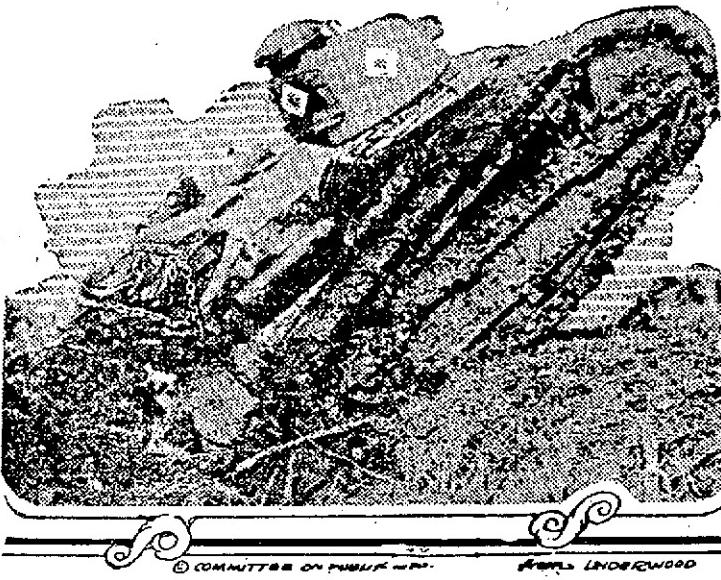

So broken hearted was the Indian over the incident that he never donned a baseball uniform after that game. Red Boy played baseball, basketball and football. His career in football began in Sioux Falls, S. D. in 1914 where he played half back on the Indian team there. He went to school at Pipestone and when in the grades he took part in various forms of athletics. Red Boy is a private in this camp. He seems utterly devoid of fear and Capt. Omer sees interesting possibilities in him as an aborigine warrior for the approaching gridiron battles.

FOOTBALL STARS ARE IN A BIG DRIVE

The amount of prize money that will be awarded in the international six-day bicyclic race, which starts at Madison Square Garden Sunday (midnight), December 1, will be larger than ever before offered in the big cycling classic. More than $30,000 will be paid the riders in prize money. The winning team will divide $5,500. The increase in the use means more money for all other teams that finish the 144-hour grind. There will be prizes for at least twelve teams.

Up to date more than fifty riders have asked for a place in the race. The entry, however, will be limited to twenty teams. This will crowd the course and minimize the danger of spills. The race committee is now working out an improved system of scoring, which will insure at least ten hours of thrilling sprinting every day.
